WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, DEC. 1.

THE Telfair will has been admitted to probate, but the attorneys of the contestants have filed the necessary bonds and taken the case on appeal to the superior court.

THE Athens Georgian appeals to every citizen of Clarke county to aid the directors of the Northeastern railroad company to raise $130,000, which sum will complete the road. One-half of the sum is already pledged, and a vigorous effort will be made to secure the balance.

THE famous Bolton will case has broken out again in Savannah. The grandson of the original Bolton has actually commenced a suit for the recovery of a vast amount of property in and around Savannah. The claimant is described as a very determined and at the same time benevolent-looking gentleman, the rector of an Episcopal church in West chester county, New York. He is in the city that he claims to own in good part.

WE find the following letter in the Athens Georgian:

"BILLY'S ISLAND, OKEFENOKEE SWAMP, }
Nov. 12, 1875. }

DEAR DOCTOR:—I send by express a bundle of cane from this place—Camp Lee.

Have secured a big alligator, 11 feet long, for the geological survey; a'so, swamp muck and hammock soil. I am getting specimens of wood; cabbage palm and red bay grow here.

We camped on Floyd's Islands under fine live oaks and magnolias. Splendid cypress and pine timber. Fish and game abundant. Potatoes grow splendidly. Corn first rate.

In haste, yours,
GEORGE LITTLE,
State Geologist.

THE Canton Georgian says tie-laying has been commenced on the North Georgia railroad, and that "Gen. Phillips has contracted for some ten or twelve miles of iron originally bought by the Cherokee railroad company, paying forty dollars a ton. This is to be delivered as soon as a lien upon an unencumbered road-bed can be given by the Marietta and North Georgia railroad company. In other words, the cross ties having been satisfactorily provided for, it only remains for the old subscribers to pay their subscriptions, when the debts already incurred will be liquidated, and the road be completed to Canton without delay."

WE have had the gratification of meeting in our office Prof. Dimitry, the distinguished litérateur of New Orleans, who so charmed our people on Tuesday evening with his notable lecture. Prof. Dimitry's name will cover a large space in the anna's of Louisiana, and the records of southern literature. His great powers are never idle, although he is one of those modest and silent workers whose influence is more generally recognized in its results than in its action. Probably there are few men in the south who have obtained such marked recognition from the savans of the old world as Prof. Dimitry, and he bids fair to yet become a prominent light in southern literature and politics, when his state, to which he is devoted, passes out from her political eclipse. We wish him the kindliest indulgences of Providence through many coming years.

THE students of Emory and Henry college, Virginia, publish a sprightly semi-monthly, styled the Banner. In its latest issue, noting the election of new officers for the publishing company, the Banner says: "Mr. F. R. Stickley was elected fighting editor of the Banner, in place of Mr. Hudson, who, be it said to his honor, has served well in his responsible position, and proved himself a brave man." Now, if Mr. Hudson is not satisfied with such a high enconium as the above he must be a particular personage, indeed. It is not often that a man filling "his responsible position" discharges its pugilistic duties with such evident satisfaction to his principals. When Mr. Hudson graduates he will find an open field before him and the choice of positions. Fighting editors are as scarce as stenographers and command excellent wages. And now let us hear that Mr. Stickley is following nobly in Mr. Hudson's footsteps!

A series of questions was propounded by the Athens Georgian for the purpose of securing accurate information ralative to the production of cotton yarns in the south. These questions were sent to the leading manufacturers of cotton goods in the state, and their answers are before us. They are scarcely what the people will expect. Mr. Sibley, of Augusta, does not "care to canvass the subject." Mr. Cogin, also of Augusta, says the mills he represents "are sold ahead of production several weeks and are running to their fullest capacity," and in his judgment there need be no fears of an overproduction of cotton goods. Mr. Hickman of the Graniteville mills, says he weaves all the yarn that he spins, and is not posted on the cost of or demand for yarns. Mr. Adam Johnston, of the Richmond factory, labors to show that we can not at present profitably export yarns to England, because Manchester has the cotton of the world to choose from, cheap capital, cheap machinery, and buildings, and the markets lead the world. None of them give us the facts in dollars and cents.

—New York against the world for high-toned idiots. This is the latest wrinkle among the aristocratic wrinklers. One of the select goes to the theater with a female of his own species; previous to which he drops, either personally or by mail, an order to a confectioner for such and such confections at a certain theater, between specified acts, seat number so and so. Promptly at that place and moment appears a liveried page bearing the sweets, and the two proceed to suck candy during the balance of the performance, or as long as the candy lasts. This is a good idea—for fools. Bull's-eyes, gum-drops, or jujebe will materially assist them in worrying through two or three hours, where the fare being simply intellectual, time must go very heavily with them. If there is any other insanity yet to be discovered we may safely trust these creatures to drag it to light.

A PETITE SOUPER AT PEASE'S

An Interesting Occasion Complimentary to Prof. Dimitry.

At the conclusion of the lecture at the Opera House, the Board of Directors of the Library Association, invited Prof. Dimitry and several of the latters friends, to supper at Pease's restaurant. The spread was made in the up-stairs dining hall, and consisted of quite an elegant repast of seasonable delicacies, etc. The good things were partaken of with zest and and appreciation.

President Mallon arose, at the finish of the repast, and expressed the great delight he had experienced in listening to the lecturer. He outlined its salient features and spoke of the suggestions thus presented of the possibilities of human progress in the future—the development of a still higher civilization. In conclusion, he gave the health of "the guest of the evening!" which was received with applause.

Prof. Dimitry responded in most feeling terms. He thanked Professor Mallon for having paid him the highest compliment he had ever received, in that Prof. M. had fully comprehended the scope, argument and intendments of the lecture. Prof. D. spoke eloquently of friendships, those of youth and those of riper age, and begged to call those around h'm friends. He referred to the kindness of his reception, of the feeling of honor and admiration which he entertained towards Georgia, and of the hope that downtrodden Louisians felt in the coming ability and willingness of Georgia to aid her in regaining her lost freedom. He proposed "The State of Georgia."

Julius Brown, esq., responded in appropriate terms to the sentiment. He also remarked that Prof. Dimitry's lecture marked a new era in Atlanta's progress, being the first one of a scientific character delivered under the auspices of the Library Association, and a notable one in its evident attraction to the public, as seen in the numbers of the audience. He proposed "The City of Atlanta."

Judge Lochrane responded in that felicitous and eloquent style which marks him of all other men. The progress of the city of Atlanta was great, but it was but a representative instance of the grand progress of the whole American people. The judge then touchingly alluded to his first meeting with Prof. Dimitry, over a quarter of a century ago, when the judge was but a youth, fresh from his native land. He said one of the kindest voices that greeted him, one of the pleasantest gentlemen who took him by the hand was the guest of the hour. The memories of that time and the causes which produced the meeting were eloquently portrayed, and filled the breasts of both with tender emotions. In closing, the judge proposed, with a well deserved compliment, the health of that true and tried patriot soldier, Gen. W. S. Walker.

Gen. Walker replied in a short but entertaining speech. His allusions to the guest of the evening and past associations were feelingly made, and the compliments paid to southern minds and southern scholars and orators were met with hearty approval.

Henry Hilyer, esq., referred in appreciative terms to the lecture, and to particular significance attaching to salient portions of it. He also referred to the aid given the library association by the press, and offered it as the next toast.

The reporter of THE CONSTITUTION responded as fittingly as was possible to him. He proposed the health of him who rears the pillar of intelligence in republican governments—The Teacher.

Prof. Mallon resonded with thanks and called upon Mr. J. F. Burke.

Mr. Burke begged to be allowed to go into voluntary oratical bankruptcy, but Judge Lochrane insisted that the law demanded 30 cents upon the dollar in such cases, and Mr. B continued, speaking very neatly of the occasion which had passed away so pleasantly.

Ben. H. Hill, jr., was called out and made one of those unique and perfect speeches which distinguish him. His remarks were quite apropos, and were roundly applauded.

The party then separated after mutual expressions of regard and gratification at the meeting.

Thad. Stevens' Housekeeper.

From Deacon Richard Smith's Cincinnati Gazette.

The housekeeper of Thaddeus Stevens is suing the estate for $200 per year for services since his death, although she was remembered in the statesman's will to the amount of $5,000. During Mr. Stevens' life rumor was busy with his name in connection with this same housekeeper. She has been in his house for many years, and her control over household matters was almost absolute. She must have been a very pretty woman in her younger days, if the picture I have seen of her at that period in any way resembled her. The painting referred to was executed by an artist of more than ordinary meri, and represents a woman with lithe, yet temptingly rounded figure, whose small head, dark skin, lighted by color, and lustrous, flashing dark eyes, shaded by marvelously long lashes, suggest the innoculation of the Spanish blood which she claims she inherits from her mother's veins, but I suppose there is no disputing the fact of her father's African origin. This handsome girl was endowed with all the craftiness and insinuation incident to her mother's nationality, while the peculiarities of her fathers temperament were by no means wanting. She now lives in Washington, keeping a boarding house, which is furnished with carpets and articles brought from the old Pennsylvania homestead. Handsome mirrors, heavy old rosewood furniture, velvet carpets, damask curtains, an old-fashioned piano elaborately inlaid, all are relics either given or taken from the house over which she held sway for so many years.

Mr. Stevens left several hundred dollars in bank to one Louis and his wife, both old servants of the household. The housekeeper engaged both trusting old souls to come with her to Washington, promising to pay Louis $14 per month in the capacity of dining-room servant, and his wife $10 for her services as cook. Years have passed, and the only remuneration for labor performed vouchsafed this simple-minded couple was their clothing and the purchase of bare necessaries and the payment of doctors' bills for incidental illnesses. When remonstrated with upon such a conduct, their mistress said, in her soft voiced, soothing way, but with a venomous sparkle to her black eyes, "You know Louis is very improvident, and rather too fond of his glass of grog. If I paid him every month his money would all be spent for drink, and then what would the poor wife and children do? So I put their money in the bank for them, merely deducting the amount of their current expenses, and one of these days, when they are too old to work, they will have enough, with the money Mr. Stevens left them, to build a comfortable little shanty, and spend their old age in peace and quiet."

True Words About the Great Philadelphia Poet.

The New York Times lately referred to Mr. George W. Childs as a man who was doing a good deal of good, and who, it seemed to the Times, "got very small thanks for it." We concur in this remark. Mr. Childs has his foibles, and a newspaper in which to show them. The Public Ledger that he owns is taken by half the newspaper reading population of Philadelphia. It is sold for two cents, and its advertising patronage is as large as its circulation. With the possible exception of the Baltimore Sun, no paper in the country makes more money, and probably there is none to which its readers pin more faith than the Ledger. Their scriptures are scarcely read with more implicit trust. When Mr. Childs tells them about the virtues of carbolic acid, they receive his statements with a confidence that is almost touching. Mr. Childs never seems as happy as when he discovers a new cure for corns, or finds a chance to read a lesson to the children on good behavior at the table. His obituary column is a mine of gems. No similar column in the country is more quoted from or admired. The pangs of the average Philadelphian are mitigated, we have no doubt, in the last trying hour, by the reflection that his memory will be embalmed in the Ledger, and his virtues duly set forth by loving and admiring friends.

This is the kind of paper that commends itself to the judgment and affections of the ordinary Philadelphian. Mr. Childs caters to the taste of the readers in the midst of whom his paper is published. He has grown rich in the business. He has gained influence. He has certainly done Philadelphia no harm. When he is gone it can be truly said of him that the city is better for his having lived in it. His Tupperian philosophy will be sadly missed, and his domestic receipts will be bound up and carefully filed away.

—The centennial women have raised the $30,000 for their building at Philadelphia, and have also contributed $95,140 to the general fund of the exhibition. It is proposed to exhibit in the building the "highest type of women's work"—sculpture, painting, literature, education, artistic needle-work, &c. Highest type of fiddlestick! Is this what American women are most proud of? Among other grotesque proposals, already adopted, is the publication of an American cook book, "giving not less than six nor more than twenty recipes for the characteristic dishes of each state or territory;" also, a volume of biographical sketches of American women.

BALTIMORE, December 1.—A special meeting of the Baltimore and Southern Steam Transportation Co. was held today to take into consideration the best means of closing the business of the company. A resolution was adopted turning over the property to the directors to be used for the benefit of the creditors. The total indebtedness of the company is $120,000. Mr. D. J. Foley, the president, stated that steamers would be run as usual. Steamers of the company ply between this city, Charleston, and the city of Wilmington, Me.

Gale in New England.

BOSTON, November 30.—A gale extending along the coast of New England had a velocity here at one time of sixty-five miles an hour. A large school house at Waterville was unroofed while the school was in session. The children all escaped without serious injuries.

The Grave.

[From the Boston Traveler.]

The lot where the vice-president's remains are to be finally laid is situated on a charming little eminence in the extreme northeasterly corner of Dell Park cemetary, about three-fourths of a mile from the village, in a westerly direction, and overlooking the town and Lake Cochituate, the view from the spot being extensive and very attractive. The lot is inclosed by a granite curb, which is surrounded by a neatly graveled driveway. On either side of the front entrance are tasteful shrubs, and a little in front of the center is a beautiful sarcophagus about four feet long, three and a half feet high and twenty inches wide, and consisting of three sections of pure white Italian marble, resting on a massive base of Quincy granite and surmounted by an officer's hat, feather, sword-belt and sash, cut in marble, and requiring six months' labor in its execution. The front of this sarcophagus is inscribed as follows: "Lieutenant Colonel Henry Hamilton Wilson, born in Natick, November 11, 1846; died in Austin, Tex., December 24, 1866." A short distance behind, and north of this, is a small sarcophagus at the head of the colonel's grave, which is simply inscribed "Hamilton." At the right and just east of the colonel's grave, is that of his mother which is marked by an Italian marble headstone of attractive and appropriate design, and inscribed as follows: "Harriett M. Howe, born in Natick, November 21, 1824, married to Henry Wilson November 28, 1840, died May 18, 1870." Below this is inscribed, "She made home happy," which is followed by, "But oh, for the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still." At the extreme northeastern corner of the lot is a double grave marked by a double or twin headstone of beautiful design and of the same material as those mentioned above. This marks the last resting place of Mr. Wilson's father and mother, the one on the right being inscribed: "Winthrop Colbath, born April 7, 1787, died Feb. 10, 1860;" while the one on the left bears the following inscription, "Abigail Colbath, born March 21, 1785, died Aug. 8, 1866." Between the graves of his parents and that of his wife is a vacant space, and that is the spot where is to be deposited the remains of the vice president, of whom his townsmen relate a touching tribute which he paid to the partner of his joys and sorrows. It is said that when the news of his nomination for the vice presidency was telegraphed him by his townsmen he replied, "Place a bouquet of flowers on my wife's grave."

The Prince of Wales' Income.

It is now close on twelve years since the "establishment" of the present prince took place on his marriage in 1863. As is well known the parliament added £40,000 a year to the inherited £60,000 from the Duchy of Cornwall, making together an annual sum of £100,000. The princess received an annuity of £10,000; and there were besides the abundant savings from the duchy during the minority, which reached the handsome sum of £540,000. Of this amount £220,000 was laid out in the purchase of an estate at Sandringham; £100,000 on a suitable outfit; £60,000 on a house, etc., for the estate; while £100,000 more, it was stated, would be absorbed by repairs to farm houses and improvement of farms as they dropped out of lease, which would leave a balance of about £60,000 on hand. Lord Palmerston, indeed, declared at the time that the working balance would be scarcely appreciable. The figures, however, seem loose enough, and allow the widest margin, especially in the case of the £100,000 for repairs to farm buildings, etc., which would lie over till the occasion served. In a recent semi-official expose, in which the state of the prince's affairs were set out, it was said that large additional sums had been sunk in the estate, but which had brought no return. This probably refers to the sum set apart for the keeping farm houses in repair and the general improvement of the estate. Till it was thus used, however, it must borne interest. So that the whole income from all sources, including the princess' jointure, would thus have amounted to about £115,000 a year.—London Society.

—Recently a young Polish maiden at Trempelan, Wis., had her pin-backer stripped off by her getting too close to the tumbling rod of a threshing machine. She attempted to step over the rod and the thingembob caught in her little thingimigig, and in a second of time there wasn't a piece of raiment on her person below the waist as big as a postage stamp, and she looked just ready to go into the fourth act of the Black Crook. The boys say she went for the house a booming, wind on her quarter, all her lower canvas gone, and timber straining badly. Moral—Keep away from tumbling rods, or else leave your clothes in the house.

Hall's Safe Company.

Robbery! Robbery!

WHY DON'T EVERY ONE be on the alert—for Burglars and Thieves? In the daily papers for every day for the past three weeks, there has been an account of a robbery in this quiet city, and sister cities.

Why not be on the SAFE side as long as you can do so? If you will call at No. 51 Broad street, you will find something that will make you as SAFE as a Safe can make you. Buy one of them and you are perfectly SAFE. We have a large stock to select from, both in Fire proof and Burglar proof, on which we took the only medal and diplomas awarded at the State Fair, Macon, Ga., 1875. We also have on hand a large stock of second hand Safes of different makes, to select from. They will be sold cheap for cash—about one-fourth their cost.

Bear in mind our stock of new Safes cannot be surpassed in the world, as we have all the latest improvements.

Four flange and patent inside boltwork and patent locks.

Our new style Fire proof Safes are certainly the best ever made yet, for many reasons:

1st. They are much thicker in the walls than any other.

2d. We use none but full angle iron covers.

3d. Every joint is welded not riveted like most others.

4th. We have the only genuine fire proof filling yet made.

5th. Our make of safes are very much heavier for the same size than any other.

6th. Our fire proof safes locks, as well as bank locks, have never failed yet.

7th. We are the OLDEST and LARGEST safe house in the world.

8th. We defy competition for either fire or burglar proof safes.

9th. We manufacture all our material on the spot, and make our own locks, therefore we have great advantages over any others, and this affords us chances to underseell them if they build their work as we do. All our work is warranted. You are specially invited to call at No. 51 Broad street, to examine our stock of safes before you purchase elsewhere.

Remember you can get a large assortment in both new and second hand safes, at No. 51 Broad street, Atlanta, Georgia.

A BOOK FOR THE MILLION

Marriage Guide. A Private Counselor to the Married, or those about to marry, on the physiological mysteries and revelations of the sexual system, with the latest discoveries in the science of reproduction, preserving the complexion, &c.

This is an interesting work of two hundred and sixty pages, with numerous engravings, and contains valuable information for those who are married or contemplate marriage; still it is a book that ought to be kept under lock and key, and not left carelessly about the house.

It contains the experience and advice of a physician whose reputation is world-wide, and should be in the private drawer of every male and female throughout the entire globe. It embraces everything on the subject of the generative system that is worth knowing, and much that is not published in any other work.

Sent to any one (free of postage) for Fifty Cents.

Opium.

OPIUM
Habit Cured

The Wonder
OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

ALMOST EVERYBODY KNOWS that an Antidote to Opium has been discovered, and that notwithstanding the scores of antidotes, so-called, that have been thrown on the market, Dr. S. B. Collins, of LaPorte, Indiana, was the real discoverer.

The undisputed date of the Doctor's discovery is July 1868, and for a long time thereafter he was the only man who represented himself as being able to even mitigate the horrors of the terrible disease.

Looked upon at first as at best a desperate experiment, it is to-day conceded to be exactly what it is represented to be, Painless, Permanent and infallible Remedy for the Opium Habit.

Out of the large number of unsolicited testimonials we select the following:

ALBION, NEW YORK, Jul 8th, 1875.
Dr. S. B. COLLINS, LaPorte, Ind:

Dear Sir—Several weeks have elapsed since I took the last dose of your Priceless Antidote to the Opium Habit.

To you and to God I owe my restoration to health and happiness once more, and I know if I had followed your directions more perfectly I should have been well long ago. I felt some nervousness for a night or two, but now I rest sweetly all night.

For twelve years I was a slave to the terrible habit of Morphine Eating, but thank God I am free once more and I shall praise God through all eternity that I ever saw one of your circulars.

I would recommend all slaves of Opium in any form to try the Doctor's Antidote. It will cure you if you follow the directions carefully.

Make what use of this you choose, and send me a Magazine once in a while.
MRS. M. M. SMITH.

PORTSMOUTH, VA,, Sept. 16th, 1875.
DR. S. B. COLLINS:

Sir—It affords me great pleasure in recommending your invaluable medicine to the public as an Opium Antidote, for as such it has more than proved itself in my case.

I am confident that had I taken Morphine two weeks longer I could not have survived its effects, for it had almost entirely destroyed my strength of mind and body, but by the hand of Providence I was led to try your Antidote.

I first obtained one bottle on trial and from the first dose I have been feeling better, and I therefore continued the use of it until I am now enabled to say that I am released from the Opium Habit, as well as from the use of the Antidote.

It effected the cure in about eight months, taking in all nine and a half bottles, and from the first bottle I took I have been improving in health and strength, so that I am now enabled to say that I am feeling better, am stronger and weigh more than for the last three years of my sickness.

I would have written you sooner, for I stopped the Antidote about four months ago, but have been waiting to be sure that my cure was permanent, of which I am now confident.

Hoping that all your patients may meet with the same success as myself, and that you and your medicine may prosper as before, I remain truly yours,
C. H. WILLIAMS.

THERIAKI, a quarterly Magazine of nearly one hundred pages, is sent free to any address.

THE WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

A Man Eighty-nine Years of Age Painlessly Cured of the Opium Habit.

DR. S. B. COLLINS' PAINLESS OPIUM ANTIDOTE.

The fact that Dr. Collins could painlessly cure the opium habit has long since become a settled thing in the minds of the observing and well read persons.

The testimonials produced by the doctor are very numerous and we positively know that each and every one are bona fide and that each truth of every one could be substantiated under oath.

Having known Dr. Collins for a long series of years, the editor of this paper gladly testifies to the fact Dr. Collins' ability to perform all that he promises.

Place is given for one testimonial out of the many we have on file, showing that a person, though beyond the age of three score years and ten, can find in the antidote of Dr. Collins a sure relief and a speedy cure. But here is the letter.

WEST ENOSBURGH, VT., May 25, 1875.
Dr. S. B. Collins, La Porte, Ind.:

Dear Sir—I had in contemplation to write to you how I was getting along and to do this I must begin away back. I was taken sick about three years ago and I was taken very violently, and the doctors gave me ether and something else, in the expectation that I would not live long. But I continued to live on, and they thought I had the heart disease, and they fed me with, (I don't know about ether,) and morphine about a month, four doses per twenty-four hours. They then thought I was not going to die yet, and they put me to one dose of morphine per twenty-four hours, and this I followed for about two years. When I was without they gave me some more. I had, before this, lost my appetite and most of my flesh. I used to weigh one hundred and eighty-four pounds; I now weigh one hundred and fifteen, and I found I could not live without morphine. The desire was greater than my resolution, and I thought I might as well have it and die—so I commenced buying it bo the bottle to save expense. And I practiced in this way for one year. At this time I began to think that I might recover and live yet many years. My constitution did not seem much impaired. but the thought that I must use morphine always or suffer the horror of going without was very trying and painful. I could not eat because I loved it, and every expedient was resorted to to get something that I could eat. My neighbors were very kind to send me something.

About this time I read in a newspaper that Dr. Collins, of Indiana, had an Antidote that was painless, and a sure cure, if directions were followed, and it was witnessed by seeming good authority.

I sat down and wrote to him, making some inquiries, but not sending for pay, cine, and he answered me very prompt and and urgently pressed me take courage try it.

I was then EIGHTY-SIX years old, and I thought it would hardly pay, and my finances were small—but I concluded to try it. So I sent for a bottle and it came in good order.

My neighbors thought it a humbug, and I feared it was no better. But I commenced taking it, 1 teaspoonful at a dose and after taking the first dose I had no more desire for morphine. It is now about three months since I began to take the Antidote and I don't seem to want either morphine or the antidote—but I am not as well as I sick, and I am three years older. And I have some Antidote left and I take some every day, not because I feel the want of it, but because I have it.

I have gained in flesh from 115 to 147 1-2 pounds, and my appetite is good—I fear a little too good.

And Dr. Collins' Antidote has done this, for I have taken nothing else. And I can recommend his antidote to anybody that wants to be cured, as an infallible remedy if directions are followed.

I have found Dr. Collins a sympathizing friend, and faithful and honest, and he seems anxious to do a person good.

N. B.—You are at liberty to correct my diction if you don't alter my meaning. I am old and old fashioned.

I am truly and affectionately yours,
LORENZO FASSETT.

It is useless to say that the old gentleman's diction has not been altered. Good old fashioned-men, and good old fashioned letters being fully as the younger men and sprucer letters of these latter days.

"THE intelligent juror" made his appearance yesterday in the Scannell case, and being asked if he had any "conscientious scruples on the subject of capital punishment" stated "he was sick at the time and did not read the papers." On further investigation it was found that he did not know what capital punishment was.—[New York Tribune.

JUST before the late war, John Slidell, then United States senator, secured an appropriation and authority to have a naval vessel sent on a cruise along the coasts of Central and South America and certain of the West India Islands, for the purpose of collecting new specimens of seed of sugarcane to be experimented with in the southern states. Congress will be urged, this winter, to repeat the enterprise, in the hope that the hardier canes known to exist may be introduced in the large sugar districts.

THE destruction by fire of the great spinning mills of the Newhall cotton factory, Glasgow, on the 13th instant (loss £300,000) has already been noted by telegraph. The factory, it seems, was one of the most extensive of its kind in the world. It contained 85,000 spindles and gave employment to about 300 hands, the total number of employes in the works being about 2,000. The weaving factory of Messrs. Young & Co., adjoining, was also destroyed. It contained 1,000 looms, and the works altogether gave employment to 700 hands.

THE Boston Journal is still pegging away at Gov. Gaston to take some action in the case of Pomeroy, the boy murderer. The governor by not taking action at all, or rather failing to sign the boy's death warrant, stands between the latter and the gallows. The law says that a person shall not be executed until the warrant of the governer is issued therefor. Gaston won't sign the warrant and it is extremely probable that his successor, Rice, will not, so that the chances are that young Pomeroy will not hang.

COLONEL JOYCE is taking advantage of his quiet retirement from public life, within the corridors of the Missouri state penitentiary, and is now engaged in writing his own life, and giving a detailed account of his experience as a crooked whisky manipulator. It is possible that Joyce has made a ten-strike. If he will unfold in the pages of his book a graphic description of "Dad Under the Hay," and "The Man in the Country," so that the public will be able to identify them, his book will sell with a rapidity which will badly crowd the presses of his publishers.

THE Jackson [Miss.] Clarion, the leading democratic paper of the state, draws up a bill of indictment against Gov. Ames, upon which it asks his impeachment. It charges that he has corrupted the judiciary and ignored the law in his appointment of judges; that in defiance of law he has dismissed judges who would not be his servile tools; that he has sought to control the decision of judges of his own appointment; that he has placed the civil in subordination to the military power; that he has incited riot and murder for partisan ends, that in appointing certain revenue agents he violated the constitution—art. 4, sec. 38.

GEN IMBODEN, of Virginia, said in a recent interview: "In less than two years we will have in the south the most conservative voting population in the world. By that time the last pestiferous carpet bagger will be rooted out. Our white population will be natives and substantial northern men, welcome settlers in our midst. Cordial relations will then exist between whites and blacks. The whites will be in the ascendant; they will be the employers, the blacks the employes, as a rule. The negroes are a docile, affectionate and a kindly race of people. Increasing intelligence will teach them that the white man necessarily control this government, and they will vote with their employers, or rather to please their employers, feeling that the man who is able to give work and direction to one hundred of them knows better than they who should go to the legislature, or to congress, or be president. It is to give this increased individual power to good and intelligent men of my own race that I desire to see the color line wiped out and cordial relations established between the white and the black man. The more intelligent you make any man the more readily he yields to a still higher intelligence. I would substitute reason for passion, intellect, and justice for brute force in wielding the powers of government. I, therefore, think, if we in the south act sensibly, in ten years a southern white man will have as many votes as he is capable of employing in his business."

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD CASES.

The supreme court has affirmed the judgment of the court of claims, and Jay Gould and his fellow gamblers are happy. Its value to Gould alone is roughly estimated at three million dollars. The decision virtually is that the government can only apply one-half of the company's transportation accounts toward the interest that it is annually called upon to pay as an indorser of the company's second mortgage bonds—that the balance cannot be collected from the company until the principal falls due. In other words, the government must pay one-half of the enormous transportation charges of the company against it but cannot recover a cent from the company for advances made on its account. The paying is all on one side—the people's side. The road is now monarch of all it surveys until the bonds are due, which is too far ahead to be a matter of present consideration.

There is no one responsible for this state of affairs, for the heavy annual taxation that it involves, but the corrupt congresses that granted the privileges. The decision was the unanimous expression of the court. The various acts were drawn by the designing men of the period to swindle the people as far as was possible. The "national character" of the work was repeatedly expressed in them. The meaning of congress is plain. It never intended that the company, which dictated the legislature, should pay any interest on the bonds. There is enough, says the court, in the scheme of the act and in the purpose contemplated by it to show that congress never intended to impose on the company the obligation to pay the current interest. The court is right; the whole trouble is chargeable to the corrupt and reckless congresses of the war period. The interest account of the United States will soon exceed the principal sum of the endorsed bonds, and the aggregate will be a frightful example of corrupt legislation and waste.

We give the conclusion of the opinion of the court, which was delivered by Judge Davis: "We cannot go into an argument on the consequences which follow our decision. The consequences are not an argument to be considered in the determination of the question. Whether an act of incorporation is less beneficial to the government than was supposed, or whether an act of congress is more or less politic and wise, it is not our province to determine. When we have declared the meaning of it, if there be power to pass it, our duty in connection with it is ended."

A $20,000,000 DASH.

In the November crop report of the state department of agriculture, in speaking of the cotton crop of the state, the omission of a dash (—) after the figures, "$20,000,000," on the second page, makes the commissioner say that the crop "will cost the producers $20,000,000 more than it will bring on the home market." It should have been "will cost the producers $20,000,000—more than it will bring on the home market."

A considerable number of papers that have copied or commented on the report, have been led into the same error.

THE withdrawal of Fernando Wood has not changed the canvass for the speakership, although it is freely stated that his withdrawal means the transfer of his influence to Randall, in consideration of which Wood is to have the chairmanship of the Ways and Means. Whether this is so or not, the situation will not be changed. Mr. Wood has made no public statement of his choice among the remaining candidates.

EVEN Paris has come to see hard times, and the fashionable world of the gay city is troubled. Worth, the man milliner, has lost very heavily by the pressure upon his business, and it is reported that he is financially embarassed. His losses, it is said, came mainly through the failure of fashionable Americans. The man whose inventive skill caused so much waste, is now feeling its just effects.

THE Chattanooga Commercial, in connecting a contemporary, claims there are two living ex-vice presidents. Can the Commercial name a deader man than Schuyler Colfax? Guibord is nowhere in that respect. Let the original statement stand unrevised. There are no living ex-vice presidents. Double postage killed Hannibal Hamlin, and the credit mobilier Schuyler Colfax.

Among the thousand stories set afloat by the Washington correspondents is one in a special to the Cincinnati Gazette which states that Senator Gordon is using his influence for Randall. We do not believe it. Senator Gordon knows the sentiment of Georgia too well to do that. Georgia is largely in favor of the election of Mr. Kerr.

THE Cartersville Planters Advocate has put in an appearance. It looks remarkably like Mr. Marschalk's old paper. This however is accounted for by the fact that it was printed in the office of the Standard, the material for the Advocate's own office not having arrived. It is expected daily.

THE Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Times says Pierce M. B. Young is also a candidate for the clerkship, but that he has not made much of a canvass. The same correspondent thinks Shober's chances are the best, with Banks and Adams in the next two places.

THE question of the vice presidency continues to be agitated, in certain of the New York papers, as if it was an open question whether Thomas W. Ferry succeeds to it vice Henry Wilson. The position of The Union that Mr. Ferry has already permanently succeeded to the place, is abundantly fortified by law, logic, and precedent. Mr. Ferry was elected to the chair of the senate with a view to the very contingency which has occurred, and with no other view. The chair was vacated by Vice President Wilson, just at the end of the session, not merely that he might be relieved of its duties for a day, but that a successor might be designated. It will be found, when congress reassembles, that Mr. Ferry's title to the chair, and his ex-officio title to the vice-presidency, is wholly unquestioned by the senate. More than that, Mr. Ferry will draw the salary ($10,000) due to the office of vice president, and not the salary ($5,000) of a senator. If anybody don't believe it, we can only say, "Wait and see."—Brooklyn Union.

THE stories from Moscow about Dr. Strousberg, the great bankrupt Russian "railway king," recall almost the days of George Law. The worthy doctor seems to have so dazzled the Muscovite capitalists by the splendor of his scheme and the regal magnificence of his conduct that they never thought of examining his bank account. Nevertheless, it comes out now that there were symptoms of the catastrophe long before it actually came. As it becomes known that the so-called "Loan Bank" was deeply involved with Dr. Strousberg, several other bank and credit institutions ceased to have connections with it. The managing director of the bank was Pojansky. In his absence one day, and while he was represented by Milliotl, a draft for 67,000 roubles came back for payment. Milliotl with a degree of prudence which seems to have been unusual at the bank, looked at the books and found that the draft had not been entered. This, of course, led to trouble. The directors were called in, found affairs in sad confusion, and summoned a counsel of stockholders. Into this council suddenly appeared Dr. Strousberg and demanded.

"BAB."

The presidential household is coming to grief. Measurer Babcock and the participants in the Black Friday affair have thus far escaped punishment through a singular tenderness of public opinion, but the telegrams already produced in the trials of Avery and other members of the St. Louis whisky ring make at least Babcock's retention in the White House impossible, if the country is to escape a great and enduring disgrace. Babcock is now and has been ever since the inauguration of the man on horseback his right hand man and confidential adviser. All the secrets of the presidential office are in his keeping, but it is hoped that all the secrets of the confidential adviser are not shared by the head of the government. No patriot can hope otherwise, much as he may desire the overthrow of the man who has permitted unheard of demoralization to creep—no, leap—into our politics.

The telegrams put in evidence at St. Louis show beyond the shadow of a doubt that Babcock was the real source of the ring's power and audacity. He was in a position to know of impending changes and movements. He could give quickest warning to his associates in crime. Upon him they relied to detect, and aid in thwarting, any proposition of the internal revenue office or treasury department to transfer the now convicted McDonald to another place. He could stop all adverse orders before they were consummated. All this and much more he could do, for he was the president's right arm; and the published dispatches show that all this he did do.

Evidence could not be clearer or more damning. The president has taken great pains to spread abroad his instructions to Secretary Bristow—"Let no guilty man escape." Will he hand over his confidential adviser for trial? It would seem as if he dare not outrage public sentiment by retaining him in the presidential office, and yet he has done worse things. McDonald's lips are sealed, it is said, by the expectancy of a pardon after the manner of Hodge. He knows all the ramifications of the conspiracy. He can tell just how far it crossed the presidential threshold, but it is believed that neither Joyce nor Avery can. The whole plot should be uncovered now; the greater criminals must be brought to judgment. If the federal officials in St. Louis hesitate, the new house of representatives surely will not. It at least is not afraid of the White House, towards which all the paths of the crooked whisky chiefs seem to lead.

THE Dalton Enterprise thus sums up a few of the advantages that Upper Georgia present to the people of the north who are looking for new homes:

1. The lives of tens of thousands who are injuriously affected by the sudden changes and extreme cold of northern winters will here be prolonged many years.

2. Considering the social, educational and religious advantages, transportion facilities, public improvements, fertility of soil, and salubrity of climate, lands are cheaper than in any other section of the country.

3. Considering the cost of land and expense of tillage, a much greater net profit can be realized annually than is realized by the farmers of any northern or eastern state.

4. The present price of lands not being at all proportionate to their productive value, the general advantage being equal if not superior to any other section, makes an investment south highly profitable.

5. In no other section of the country is the practical farmer and landowner held in so high esteem as in the southern states, and nowhere on the face of the earth will the northern farmer and citizen meet with such a hospitable welcome as awaits him at the hands of the representative people of the south.

6. Here the land is ready they for seed permanent markets are already established, and a ready sale can be affected for all that the earth can be made to yield and for all the various merchantable articles that can be manufactured within our borders.

COL. D. WYATT AIKEN, of South Carolina, has been chosen to the important position of chairman of the executive committee of the national grange. The session of the national grange will probably last another week.

NORTH GEORGIA CONFERENCE.

Ninth Annual Session.

GRIFFIN, GA., December 1, 1875.

The North Georgia Conference met in the Methodist church at 9 a. m.

There is a very large attendance of delegates, lay and clerical.

Among the distinguished lay delegates are Judge C. D. McCutchen, of Dalton; V. R. Tommey, of Decatur; J. S. Stewart, of Oxford; C. H. Johnson, of Griffin; T. M. Merriwether, of Newton, Dr. W. King, of Athens.

The conference was opened with religious exercises conducted by Bishop J. C. Keener. His address to the members at the opening was perspicuous and impressive.

The following constitute the officers of the conference:

President, Bishop J. C. Keener; John W. Heidt, secretary; T. A. Seals, J. Lewis jr., J. H. Baxter, W. P. Lovejoy, assistant secretaries.

On motion, the presiding elders were appointed a committee to nominate committees.

J. S. Stewart, mayor of Oxford, was elected assistant treasurer.

The report of the Southern publishing house showed assets $573,887 24; liabilities, $266,284 54; balance, $307,602 73. Referred to committee on books and periodicals.

Judge C. D. McCutchen and J. T. Waterman were elected members of the committee on education.

J. L. Mattox and W. C. Smith were added to the committee on Southern Christian Advocate.

J. H. Jones, of Elberton, and W. C. Derry, of Augusta, were added to the Sunday school board.

Conference hours fixed at 9 a. m. for meeting, and 1 p. m. for adjournment.

Rev. G. H. Pattillo is chairman of the committee on Southern Christian Advocate.

SUPERANNUATED.

The characters of the following superannuated preachers were passed: Jesse W. Carroll, Robert A. Conner, Henry Crawford, Andrew J. Deavors, John M. Bright, J. M. Armstrong, John P. Duncan, M. G. Hamby, S. J. Bellah, J. B. C. Quillian, Goodman Hughes, Morgan Bellah, Claiborn Trussell, John W. Knight, Noah H. Palmer, Miles W. Arnold, William A. Florence, Miller H. White, R. J. Harwell.

CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY.

There are 17 candidates for admission into the ministry.

GRIFFIN NOTES.

Dr. J. Thad. Johnson reached here yesterday, and as soon as he got off the train, called for a preacher. Whether he will go into the banking business is a matter of conjecture.

Revill, of the Greenville Vindicator, is in town. The influx of female visitors has been large in consequence.

A venerable divine from Oxford, when asked if he would visit the centennial next year, replied that he would rather visit Porter's Springs.

The Mayor of Oxford possesses rare purse-onal charms to the members.

Rev. A. G. Haygood says that stoves and other church comforts are a means of grace.

Rev. G. G. Smith preached Tuesday night an impressive sermon on "Sacrifice and service, or true greatness."

Railroad Completed.

SAVANNAH, December 1.—The junction railroad connecting the Savannah and Charleston with the Atlantic and Gulf railroad was completed to-day, and trains passed over. A large delegation from this city met delegates from Charleston at the junction and the two trains came in together. The completion of this line gives through mail connections from the north to Florida and southwestern Georgia via Savannah, and also another through rail line to Atlanta via Augusta. A dinner was given at the Pulaski House in honor of the occasion.

DECEMBER'S MODES.

Picturesque Styles at Vulgarly Low Prices.

Women in Scarlet and Gold, Women in Furs and Feathers, Shopping for the Holidays.

(From our own Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, November, 1875.

There is a great deal of pleasure in these bright days which come to us in the latter half of November in shopping and seeing other people "shop" for the holidays.

Men make their purchase the night or day before Christmas or New Year; they know exactly what they want to get, for it is usually something about which they have received several unmistakeable hints—a set of furs, a seal skin jacket, a pair of bracelets, a neck chain with pendant attached, an opera glass, a book, an engraving, or perhaps a basket of flowers, or a box of bon-bons. Whatever it is, he knows just where he is going to get it, and is not troubled about what it will cost, he has not many presents to make and intends it shall be "handsome." So without troubling himself a moment beforehand he rests in conscious mastery of the situation until the time for decisive action arrives, then leisurely stops on his way up or down town, at the costliest shop he is acquainted with, makes his purchase, orders it home, and the duty performed, dismisses it from his mind. What he does not like about the whole transaction is the hole it makes in his exchequer.

The ways of women are very different from this, partly from a difference in organization, partly from necessity. A woman never has money enough to buy all she wants at once, and could not if she had, because her purchases are so varied, adapted to so many family wants, and take in so great a diversity of individualities, big and little, young and old. It is the woman who looks out for the children, who remembers about the sled, and the skates, and the broken teaset and the dilapidated doll, and the coveted writing desk, and other small articles, all of which must be reinforced at Christmas, or Christmas will not be any Christmas at all. It is she, also, who must hunt the repositories of the worsteds or silks, in which to work miraculous slippers, which "papa" is to get in acknowledgement of his "solitaire," who knows just what the "grandma" will like and who has to spread five dollars over a gayly figured dress, and numerous small articles of use and ornament for the critical approval of servants. No wonder she begins shopping in November! The money, bless you, has been accumulating through the year. It has been saved out of joints and heads of celery, and stews upon the stray days when the husband dined at his club. It was helped considerably by making over a winter dress instead of buying a new one, by re-lining the children's furs at home; and by—well, I am not going to tell any more of the shifts and sacrifices which collected together that precious money, but I will just remark that if it was happiness to save it, it is ten times greater happiness to spend it. It was saved to spend, and she only wants to spread her comfort and enjoyment in the uses to which she puts it, over as much space as possible.

There have been quantities of virtuously indignant articles written about shopping, about women who occupied their time in looking at articles which they did not want and could not afford to buy. But how do we know they did not want them? Might it not have given them a poor sort of consolation to look at articles, simply because they could not afford to buy them? Women are so poor: there are some who live in very fine houses, who do not know what it is to have a dollar in their purse, which they can spend freely.

It is this which very often makes women seem mean, and, like children, pleased with trifles. A very nice looking old lady was made completely happy this morning by having two inches on a remnant of ribbon "thrown in." I thought if one only could be a benificent fairy about this time, how delightful it would be to touch with a wand the thin, scant-looking pocket book of some women, and have them find unexpected treasures in the shape of bills, and crisp new currency; stretch ribbons to unimaginable lengths, duplicate gloves, attach the wished for ornament to the waist, or clasp it round the neck, and witness the joy of discovery.

REDUCTION IN PRICES.

An agency not altogether beneficent has very much reduced prices this season on all kinds of wearing apparel, but unfortunately at the same time has limited the means of purchase. Clothing, ornaments, objects of art, and luxury, have not been obtainable at the present rates since long before the war. So many are trying to sell beautiful things, remnants of better days; so few comparatively, have the money to buy. Diamonds, camel's hair shawls, rich laces are offered in quantities at private sale, at less than half their original value, and not a few "bargains" have been secured in this way, which will make a great and unexpected show on Christmas tables, and in grown up Christmas stockings.

American manufacturing skill and enterprise are also reducing prices upon many formerly costly fabrics, and articles employed for use and ornament. We are making our own camel's hair cloth at a cost which enables the merchant to sell it at $1.50, instead of $3.50. We are making our own jewelry, real and imitation, that is some of it; our own silks, our own Japanned paper ware, and some of our finest fans.

In the more delicate branches of industry we could do much more if workers were trained, like the French, to habits of industry and economy. We cannot make fine artificial flowers, not because the skill is lacking, but because the waste of infinitesimal particles of rich material is so great as to more than absorb the profit. In French artificial flower and other manufactories of the same sort, the utmost care and vigilance is exercised, the floors are waxed, the clothing of the workers covered by great aprons, which are taken off and shaken before leaving the room, and then the floor itself is swept and every particle of silk, every grain of gold leaf, every thread of velvet, or bit of silver wire collected and reserved for future use.

Here we lack the absolute system, and order, and cleanliness, and supervision necessary to success in the fine branches of manufacture. We lack also the trained labor, and we have to pay much higher prices for such as we get. Many hard lessons have got to be learned before we arrive at a point where we faithfully put ourselves, and that which is committed to us, to fullest and best uses.

PICTURESQUE FASHIONS.

One has to go back twenty years and see the fashion plates of that date in order to realize the revolution which has taken place since skirts covered with three flounces, were spread out over a hoop four yards and a half round, and crowned by a scoop-shaped bonnet, pitched back from the face, and rendered still more hideous by a deep, ugly curtain.

Certainly the styles now are picturesque if nothing else. They are full of surprises, well carried out, they present a series of enchanting pictures and are gay, gracious, lively or severe, but never commonplace.

They are adapted to beautiful and cared for women, the homely and uncared for can find refuge in homespun and alpaca. What can be more striking or more graceful than a visiting dress of to-day? The plain demi-trained skirt of rich black velvet—coat sleeves of velvet also, with a princesse polonaise of soft white woolen matelasse or nortte cloth, caught up on one side only, with a chatelaine bag of black velvet with silver mountings.

Add to this costume long ivory-tinted kid gloves, and "Rubens" hat of unbleached felt, turned up high, and trimmed with black velvet and ivory feathers, and you have a dress which is perfection, as far as its effect is concerned, particularly if the wearer be handsome, graceful and young.

There was a time when certain rigid observances were necessary to constitute correct visiting and church dress. An orthodox bonnet was the first essential, and a proper exhibition of handkerchief balanced upon the tips of the fingers, the second. More intimate acquaintance with the manners of our French cousins has banished the handkerchief to the regions where it belongs, and we are gradually learning that if the prettiest things are not put to the best uses, they will be put to the worst.

The soft grey felt hats with broad brims bordered with fur, the left side turned back boldly, and mounted with a daring contrast in feathers, or other ornaments, the crown swept by a long, drooping plume, was considered an innovation for city wear, even as late as the present autumn; yet it has won high favor within a few months and is now to be seen at church, at the theatre, at the opera and at receptions. It is rather curious that as yet we have had no "full dress opera" this season. The regular opera audiences have been conspicuous by their absence from the German and from the English opera. No evening toillettes have been seen, only such costumes as may be observed any time at church, or in the street, with perhaps the addition of white, or light hat and gloves.

The restoration of the white hat however, and the more general use, both day and evening of delicate tinted kid gloves, gives a generally more dressy appearance to any assemblage where there are ladies, and this is heightened by the uses to which gold and silver braid and the vivid "cardinal" scarlet is put.

SCARLET AND GOLD.

We have not put on the livery of the famous "Jeames," nor become the complete representatives of the Babylonish women. Scarlet and gold are both used sparingly, but they form such striking contrasts with black, navy blue, ivory and the cameo tints generally, that the result is very striking.

It is not uncommon to see complete costumes of navy blue, or invisible green, with hat to tip up by bows of scarlet ribbon and a scarlet rose, or scarlet feather. Creamy hats of rich velvet felt, have brims faced with scarlet and filled in with a scarlet bow across which a dagger of gold and pearl gleams.

There are hats also bowed, and partly trimmed with gold, or silver braid, and small pallots of black velvet, a cream-colored cloth or matelassie trimmed to match.

It is the fashion now, instead of tying a ribbon round the throat to ornament the front of the paletot, or jackets with loops, and long ends. These are always scarlet unless the ribbon matches the suit or costume.

The gold and scarlet mania is now in its best stage. The brilliant coloring is put in sparingly, and with artistic effect. The braids and finer galloons into which gold and silver thread are introduced are of the best quality, and do not tarnish or become defaced any quicker than the textile fabric which forms the foundation. The prices at which alone this quality can be produced, restricts their use to the favored few, and it will take another season to fill the market with the trashy imitations, which destroy the best ideas, and furnish a motive for perpetual novelty.

FURS AND FEATHERS.

The question of furs has resolved itself very nearly into a question of trimmings. The introduction of fur trimmings actually threatens to kill the fur trade. The reason is this: Fashion insists upon harmony between the different parts of the costume. It is convenient to have a fur trimmed cloak or jacket, but it is not convenient to pay the price for mink or sable, or black martin trimming to match the "set" which we already own. What is to be done? Perhaps new furs will be required as well as a new jacket, and immediately an idea strikes the thrifty mind of the ingenious modern woman. She will make jacket or winter suit and muff out of the same cloth, and trim them both with the same fur. This method will enable her to use a much cheaper fur as trimming, and save the necessity for a new set, a most important expenditure. Moreover, when the fashion has gone, they can go with it, and nobody be hurt.

The new silk paletots, which are almost invariably lined or trimmed with fur, have especially suggested this solution to many a difficulty. Silk is not any more expensive than good cloth. A flannel lining edged with fur is cheap, better than fur on many accounts, and just as effective. Make a muff to match, with an edging of fur and a band of it, the same in shade, but of better quality, round the centre, and the outfit, with the exception of the boa, is complete. Black velvet is beautifully utilized in this way, in fact the cost of a really handsome set of furs goes a long way towards providing a complete velvet suit.

The fashions in furs, in color and kind, rather than in styles, have changed so within the past few years as to produce a feeling of uncertainty very unfavorable to a steady, popular trade. There was a time when a set of mink was a sine qua non of the average woman's existence. The business reputation of a husband who could not afford his wife a set of mink was compromised, while their possession was the indubitable evidence of a certain standing and respectability. Since the decline of mink, no other fur has reached or occupied the same position. The diversity is so great that it has become a mere matter of taste, and as few can tell the difference between the real and the imitation, or know, indeed, the names of the almost infinite varieties which they see about them, they shut their eyes, and buy that which suits the condition of their purse, since society no longer imposes any special obligation upon them in this direction.

Feather trimmings divide the honors with the fur, and this again impairs the prospects of the fur-fanciers. Worse still, it is the more expensive and profitable class of trade that they cut into. Feather trimmings cannot be imitated; they require hand labor and care in their preparation. All this makes them prized and sought for.

Feather trimmings are newer also than fur, much more varied and adapted therefore to a greater diversity of fabrics.

The tints and shades, and prismatic hues blend with the colors of fabrics, and match the ornaments of the hat, perhaps even the composition of the fan. There is no end to the uses to which the soft, delicate, or brilliant plumage of birds can be put, and ladies who can afford to preserve the unities in this costly way, find their excuse in the exquisite results.

THE PRINCESSE POLONAISE.

The polonaise dies hard. Half a dozen times when it has been supposed buried, put away out of sight and knowledge, it has turned up fresher, brighter, prettier, and more fascinating than ever.

The last form which it has taken is that of an overdress cut in the Gabrielle style and sleeveless, of course. It slopes off from the waist smoothly and is caught up on the left side only, leaving the other plain and free for the chatelaine end of the Jeanne d'Arc belt, from which is suspended the fan.

This polonaise is very pretty in Surah silk over plain faille; or in white silk matelasses over blue brocade cut plain.

It is exceedingly distinguished in white notte silk over black velvet, and for visiting purposes may be made in brocaded cassimer, or cloth of spitzbergen over heavy faille.

SILVER JEWELRY.

The silver chatelains which retain their vogue are probably responsible for the introduction of silver ornaments which appear in the form of "throatlets," or bands, chased, or formed of links, which are clasped close around the throat.

There are also bracelets, and earrings to match these patterns, and silver belts composed of rings through which velvet or ribbon is run, and which is swung to the side and used as a chatelaine if desired. A very fashionable appendage to the dress is the black velvet chatelaine bag, also mounted in silver.

It is always suspended from the left side, or the opposite side to that which holds the fan, and scent bottle, and looks exceedingly well when the dress is black, or black and white in silk and velvet, and the ornament silver.

For evening dresses, chatelaine bags are made of silks and trimmed with lace and fringe to match the dress, or are made of satin and covered, as well as trimmed, with lace.

The hair is worn higher, and beginning to be massed more toward the front of the head. Short, loose curls shade the forehead, instead of disgusting "bang."

JENNIE JUNE.

The South in a Better Condition Than the North.

(Nashville American.)

All over the north and west real estate has depreciated greatly, far more than in the south, and especially in Tennessee and Kentucky, are the people in a much better condition than they are in the northern states, east or west. If we have not enough money to supply the wants of trade, we do not owe so much, and are therefore not under the necessity of sacrificing property to so great an extent to meet debts.

Again, the bulk of our population are tillers of the soil. We have had abundant crops of the cereals, cotton, tobacco and fruits, so that there is no danger of starvation to either to man or beast. Our mines and manufactories are located in the midst of fertile agricultural districts, and if they have but little work for their employees, in the climate there is no danger of protracted suffering. Upon the whole, notwithstanding the loss necessarily occasioned to all by the miserable financial system which the republican party has fastened upon the country, we have the consolation of knowing that we are better off than they are in any state in the union where the republican party is in power.

Safe Arrival of Steamer.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The steamer Jamacian left New Orleans November sixth for Liverpool, and spoken of recently, in latitude 51 deg. longitude 14 deg. The engines were stopped but required no assistance. Later. The Jamacian arrived safely at Crook haven.

Virginia Legislature.

RICHMOND, VA., December 1.—The legislature met in its annual session today. The governor's message was read. It is a voluminous document, covering nearly forty printed pages. He gives the gross receipts of the treasury for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1875, at $2,657,790; disbursements, $2,811,894; balance on hand, $29,192, paid in interest on the state debt during the year $1,417,845. The annual aggregate interest on the state debt and other accounts is $2,035,036; showing a deficit of over $600,000 to be provided for within the last fiscal year. A larger portion of the current accruing revenues was applied to the payment of interest than in any other previous year.

The governor submits numerous recommendations looking to the increase of revenue and to retrenchment and reform. He recommends tax upon liquors, a proper tax on oysters and the taxation of church property when it exceeds two thousand dollars in value. He thinks that criminal charges might be safely removed from the general treasury and the counties be compelled each to pay its own share of them.

He recommends equalization of tax on personal property.

In relation to the payment of the public debt, he reiterates the language used in his inaugural, in which he says the obligations to public creditors are binding. The honor and good faith of the commonwealth should be fulfilled to the utmost of her ability in any event and under all circumstances. No other calamity could inflict greater detriment, either moral or pecuniary, upon the whole body of the people than a deliberate breach of public honor. He declares that Virginia cannot possibly ever pay that portion of the public debt, which has been assigned to West Virginia, and Governor Kemper censures his predecessor, ex-Governor Walker, for making too flattering an exhibit of the state's resources. He recommends the recapitulation of the state debt by substituting for the bonds now out, and others bearing four per cent. gold interest, with provisions for certain and prompt payment. The governor recommends a constitutional amendment to do away with the secret ballot and return to viva voce system; he also recommends amendments to exempt from taxation for a time, the property of immigrants and those interested in manufacturing.

The governor makes some appropriate remarks, and comments sharply upon the singular ideas which some of the English people seem to have in regard to the Foley statue of Stonewall Jackson and the circumstances under which it was presented to Virginia.

The governor, in referring to the centennial, states with great power the only objection that can be made to Virginia's participating in that grand affair, but combats these powerful considerations with effectiveness. He concludes: "Let not Virginia stand aloof from this gathering of her sister states on the spot which gave birth to free government, and where her illustrious sons a hundred years ago took so grand a part in rearing the pillars of American liberty, and let her stand there, hand in hand with her sister states, around the hallowed spot, and uniting with them, give her potent aid in laying deep and strong the foundation of a reconstructed union, made perpetual by good will, equal laws, equal rights and equal liberties for all."

Vice President Wilson's Funeral.

NATICK, MASS, Dec. 1.—The day is bright and cold. Funeral services at Wilson's house. At the conclusion of the private services at his house, the remains of the vice president were removed to the town hall, where the public and final ceremonies took place. The services were conducted by Rev. Francis N. Peloubet, assisted by Rev. A. E. Reynolds, Rev. J. S. Wheden, and Rev. Edmund Dowse. After the benediction by Mr. Peloubet, the remains were conveyed to the hearse, and the procession formed the line of march, which embraced nearly every street in town, and it was not until four o'clock that the hearse reached the grave in Dell Paro cemetery. The grand army post formed a square about the lot, while the military escort was drawn up in line in the driveway. The mourners and invited guests having assembled in a body, the band meanwhile playing a solemn dirge, the casket was gently lowered to its final resting place.

Western Union Telegraph Co, vs. Western Atlantic R. R. Co.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The supreme court argued to-day the case of the Western Union telegraph company vs. Western Atlantic railroad company, and a cross appeal from the circuit court for the northern district of Georgia. The question involved is whether a contract made by the telegraph company with the state as owner and manager of the railroad company, in August 1870, by which the state was to have the use of a wire along the line of the road from Atlanta to Chattanooga, for the transmission, under certain conditions, of messages on the business of the road. There was a contract of sale or lease. Under a subsequent sale of the road by the state, the wire was included in the inventory of the road and appurtenances, and the state having paid the telegraph company the cost of the construction and equipment of the wire, as provided in the contract, the railroad company set up a claim to the wire, and forbid its use by the telegraph company, and proposed to resist by force the severance of the wire by the telegraph company, from the stations along the road. The latter company then brought this bill and was defeated below, the court seeming to adopt the theory of a sale as insisted upon by the railroad company.

M. Peloubet spoke a benediction, and the relatives and friends took a last look and dropped a few flowers upon the casket lid, and the last rites attending the demise of Henry Wilson, the Natick cobbler, and the illustrious vice-president of the United States were at an end. The town was crowded with people during the afternoon. After the ceremonies ended, military escort immediately departed for Boston.

Day clear and cold.

Ready for Sea.

PHILADELPHIA, December 1.—The iron clads at League island are ready for sea. They will leave to-morrow morning in tow of vessels, which are to accompany them to Norfolk. The fleet will consist of nine or ten vessels. Among the vessels to sail are the Powhattan, Tallapoosa, Alliance, Nantucket and Wyandotte.

Military Operations Impeded.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Times in its second edition this evening, publishes a special telegram from Dane Elorgrade, which states that military operations are impeded by heavy snows in the mountains round about Goranoks. The insurgents are well provisioned and toleraby situated, while the besieged Turkish garrison is reduced to extremities.

Satisfactory.

MADRID, December 1.—Cushing is present. The telegraphic reply from his government to the last Spanish dispatch is considered very satisfactory, and dissipates recent apprehensions.

The Speakership.

WASHINGTON, December 1.—Willard's hotel was the resort of a large crowd of persons to-night, a number of whom were personally interested in the election of officers of the house, and the remainder were drawn thither by curiosity. The respective friends of Randall and Kerr represent each as ahead, though nothing positive can be ascertained on the subject at present as there are only about ninety members of the house in the city.

At the Imperial hotel there was a crowd to witness the selling of pools on the speakership. The highest price bid for pools was fifty dollars. The betting ran most curiously. Randall started off as the first choice, betting even for him against the field. Kerr was then sold for fifty dollars as first choice against the field, and finally the field sold for fifty dollars with only forty bid for first choice. The pool selling is to continue during the remainder of the week, and candidates for clerk, sergeant-at-arms and doorkeeper will also come into the scramble hereafter.

Representative Cox, who was left out by the pool sellers, is also in the field and has, so far as known, fifty votes to commence with, or enough to turn the scale for either of the other competitors for the speakership.

To-morrow, Messrs. Randall, Kerr and Cox will meet to select the officers of the caucus and to make other necessary arrangements for the meeting next Saturday.

National Rowing Association.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Dec. 1.—At the annual meeting of the national rowing association of the American colleges, today, Mr. Stevens, of Bowdoin, was choren president; Mr. Warner, of Trinity, vice president; Mr. Cauldwell, of Hamilton, secretary, and Mr. Haynes, of Williams, treasurer Trinity was re admitted to the associations.

Indian Affairs.

ST. LOUIS, December 1.—A Kansas City special to the Republican says advices from Denver report that troops have been ordered from Forts Lincoln and Union to the vicinity of Cameron, New Mexico, where the Apache Indians had revolted some ten days since. It appears that one of the Apache chiefs refused to take rations offered by the government, and after some words the Indian drew a revolver and shot the agent through the head. The affair caused great excitement, and after the Indian was placed in irons, the rest of the tribe made a general disturbance. There are grave fears that a general outbreak of the Apaches and Utes will take place, and much anxiety is felt.

The Races.

AUGUSTA, December 1.—The last day of the Augusta Jockey Club races. In the half mile dash, First Chance was first; Mollie Darling, second; Lottie Moon, third. Time—1:18½.

Mile heats, best two in three, Abdel Rose, first; Harry Hart, second; Hartland, third; Century, fourth. Time—1:48½.

Second heat—Harry Hart, first; Hartland, second; Abdel Rose, third; Century, fourth. Time—1:49.

Third heat—Harry Hart, first; Abdel Rose, second. Time—1:49 1-2.

"WARMING" A PASTOR.

An Interesting Event at Evans' Chapel.

On Tuesday evening, at Evans Chapel, where a party of Sabbath scholars and teachers had assembled for the purpose of cultivating their vocal powers, in singing Sunday school hymns, the Rev. J. H. Harris, pastor of the church being present with them as is his usual custom, the company were surprised by the sudden appearance of Mr. Thos Turner, advancing towards the altar with a large bundle. Upon reaching the altar, he proceeded to remove its paper covering, and disclosed a superb over-coat and a very handsome broadcloth vest. Of course the singing ceased, and all eyes were fixed with wondering gaze upon Mr. Turner and the new clothes he was exhibiting. Mr. Turner, however, soon relieved them from their anxious suspense by advancing to the Rev. J. H. Harris and addressing him, as near as we can remember, in the following words:

"Mr. Harris, you, sir, have been pastor of this church for the last two years, and as such, have succeeded in endearing yourself to the hearts of the members of your church and congregation, and a portion of them—the young ladies connected with Mrs. Hardage's Sunday school class—have purchased and requested me to present you this overcoat and vest as a token of their high regard and appreciation of your services as their pastor. Take them, sir, and wear them, and as the grace of God has warmed your heart hitherto, so may these keep your body warm." The reverend gentleman replied with much eloquence and very perceptible gratitude to the young ladies. He said there were some things beyond price—gold and silver could not purchase them—thus he regarded the present just tendered him. It would be worn and cherished with the greater pleasure on account of the donors, for he regarded with the highest christian affection, the young ladies of Mrs. Hardage's Sunday school class. The surprise was a very agreeable one, and the company did not require any apology of Mr Turner for the little "disturbance."

Child of the "Lost Cause."

From the forthcoming issue of our sterling southern literary journal, the Sunny South, we extract the following, which will, we know, commend itself heartily to every southern heart:

ENDOWMENT FOR STONEWALL JACKSON'S DAUGHTER.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., November 22, 1875.

John H. Seals, Editor and Proprietor Sunny South:

DEAR SIR: Below I send you a notice of a movement which will be started simultaneously in Virginia and Georgia, and will doubtless receive the enthusiastic and loving favor of all the south. When you publish the notice, and thus bring it before the public, they will be prepared for the subscription paper which will soon be presented.

The movement has received the approbation of Gen. James L. Kemper, Governor of Virginia, and is now in the hands of one of Georgia's pet heroes for advice and consideration.

By presenting it favorably in your beautiful sheet, you will aid in doing honor to the greatest hero of our "Sunny South."
Respectfully, DOUGLASS.

ENDOWMENT FUND OF JULIA JACKSON.

A movement is now on foot to endow little Julia, the child of Stonewall Jackson, and it is in such hands as will doubtless make it a success worthy of the name and fame of the great man whom two worlds unite to honor.

The soldiers and their families are making the movement, and chieftains endorse it.

Only in sums of one dollar and hundredth parts of one dollar, will subscriptions be received, that all may partake of this feast of love, gratitude and honor, and none be debarred.

Should larger sums be contributed, all in excess of one dollar from one person will be entered on the list immediately after the donor's name, under the heading "From the Unreturning Brave."

All contributors will be entitled to a printed "List of Contributors," which will assume a pamphlet form should the success be as great as is expected.

In sorest poverty, in deepest distress, let us come forward and honor our own children and our dead brothers by heaping a great blessing upon the child of that chieftain "upon whose prayer bedewed banner victory ever seemed to wait."

Soldiers, what would you give to Jackson living? What ought you to give to Jackson's child?

Southern papers will please copy.

The Grand Pacific Hotel and the Young Men's Library Centennial Party.

Among the voluntary contributors to the recent very brilliant and successful Centennial Tea Party, given in favor of the Young Men's Library Association of Atlanta was the Grand Pacific Hotel of Chicago, Ill. The proprietors of this magnificent hostelrie sent to Mr. William Goodnow for the Massachusetts table a despatch to draw upon them for the handsome sum of twenty-five dollars for that table. This timely and liberal contribution was gratefully accepted. The managers wish to acknowledge the courtesy, and our people who visit Chicago will do well to remember the generous act, and visit the Grand Pacific when they go to Chicago.

Police Notes.

Officer Lynch caught yesterday a chicken thief named Ireland Hobbs, colored. He was found walking on Decatur street with a bag containing eight chickens, on his shoulder. After being carried to the guard-house, he confessed that he had stolen the chickens from a lady named Burge living four miles in the country.

Officers Lynch and Smith also ran on a burglar about daylight at Lewis' cracker factory. He escaped arrest by darting through the building, and jumping out of a window. Nothing was stolen.

THE ELECTION.

Splendid Triumph of the Democratic Ticket.

Quiet Time and a Big Showing.

The election yesterday passed off very quietly, and we are glad to say that no serious instance of disorder occurred anywhere in the city while the polls were open. Undoubtedly much of this good result was due to the closing of all the bar rooms during the election hours. The managers were promptly at their different places at seven o'clock, and as usual, were greeted by crowds of negroes who were awaiting the opening of the polls. They voted in heavy numbers during the early hours of the day, but fell off rapidly towards afternoon.

It was between nine and ten o'clock before the whites began to vote, but when they did, they came in a steady resistless stream, which lasted until the polls closed. When a negro votes, he always considers it necessary to stay around the polls a few hours to discuss the situation with other citizens of his own color. A white man votes and goes back to his business. Consequently, appearances yesterday at each of the precincts would indicate that the darkies were far ahead, when the facts were directly the reverse. The democratic nominees and their friends soon had carriages running through the city, with appropriate placards, for the convenience of voters, and these added materially in bringing out the full strength of the party.

NEGRO VOTE DIVIDED.

The colored vote was also divided. This was especially the case in the 3d ward, where we learned, upon reliable authority, that even a majority of the negroes voted the regular democratic ticket. In the other wards the same division among the colored men existed to a greater or less extent, and it is doubtless true, that a considerable portion of the heavy majority by which the regular ticket was elected, is due to their assistance.

A SMALL DISAGREEMENT.

A small sized row was started at the 1st ward polls, between two citizens of different parties, but did not amount to much. Both had some whisky aboard. The police soon quelled it in the bud, and the excitement was allayed.

THE MEASURING OF THE RESULTS.

The results of the yesterday's election are of serious import. They mean first that this city has not only passed entirely and forever from the control of the republican party, but that that party itself is hopelessly divided. It means also, that many of our freedmen are learning wisdom, and the difference between real and pretended friends. They voted to suit themselves yesterday, and many of the prominent ones among them say that they mean to do it in the future.

The election of Mr. O. H. Jones to the responsible position of alderman was not only a triumph of the regular ticket, but a triumph for the high schools. Mr. Jones' position upon this question was well understood. He was known to be a strong advocate of our present school system, and a big fight was consequently concentrated upon him, yet he came off the victor by the handsome majority of 753.

We give the returns below, arranged in tabular form, by which the votes in the several wards and the majorities of each one upon the regular ticket may be readily seen. It was eleven o'clock last night before all had come in:

THE MAGISTRATES

Justice Butt yesterday sent to jail, Fred Williams, Dick Collins, Aaron Tolbert and George Calhoun, all colored, for gambling. They were caught by the police.

Returned to the City.

We are glad to see again at his post our genial and esteemed friend, Frank G. Hancock, who has returned with his bride from Macon, whither he went to spend a few days as the guest of his partner, Rev. J. W. Burke. Frank is one of those men to whom nature has bequeathed a sunny temperament, but the institution called marriage has given to him a heightened glow of happiness. In the light of the successes of the past, won by the exercise of discretion and constancy, we presage for him a life, in new partnership with one of Georgia's choicest female queens, full of pleasures, profits and triumphs. The fittest epithalamium we could indite to them is to believe they are

"Two souls with but a single thought;
Two hearts that beat as one!"

Hall's Combination.

Hall's Combination opened a season of four nights in this city last evening, with D'Ennery and Cormon's great play of "The Two Orphans." The company came here well indorsed by the press of the cities they have visited, and assembled the most fashionable, as well as one of the largest audiences that has been gathered in DeGive's Opera House this season. The entire theatre was filled with the beauty and fashion of the city, and even the galleries had very little room to spare. The company did not disappoint their audience. From the moment the curtain rose upon this superb play to the close, the audience were either wild with applause, or affected to tears. It is not often one sees a whole theatre crying, but we came very near seeing it last night. It would be difficult to conceive the piece presented more forcibly than it is by this admirable company.

Miss Emma Pierce, and Miss Ada Gilman, as Henrietta and Louise, the two orphans, were splendid. They brought out their difficult parts perfectly even to the minutest shades. Mr. Louis L. James, as the gallant Chevalier de Vaudrey was tremendous success. He is an actor of remarkable ability and promise. The parts of "Jaques" and "Pierre" were well sustained by Messrs. B. Holmes and E. Coleman, and the knife conflict between them was enthusiastically applauded. "La Frochard" was brought out in all of the richness that belongs to that detestable woman, by Mrs. J. H. Rogers and Mr. Whiffin is something on a song, as well as the perfection of Confidential Valets. The other parts were also well sustained, and the play, as a whole, has eclipsed anything seen on our boards this season. To-night the company will present the great play of "Led Astray." This piece is now attracting immense audiences in New York, and in its climaxes, is said to rival "The Two Orphans." There will undoubted be a rush for seats, very few who were in the theatre last night will fail to come back, and they will bring as many more as can get in. We advise our readers therefore, not only to go, and see something they will never regret, but to get seats early.

THE ORANGE LAND.

A Tramp in Floridian Sands—A Visit to Mr. Montgomery.

A Handy Norwegian—The Markham Orange Grove.

LAKE JOANNA, FLORIDA, November 20, 1875.

The day after I wrote you my last letter, Mr. Echols, of Social Circle, died at the hotel in Mellonville. To the last he cherished hope of recovery, but, as I stated, there was not the slightest chance of his ever leaving the bed alive. He was too far gone in consumption when he reached Mellonville, and although some persons have come here apparently in the last stages of the disease and recovered, still others have only come to die. Indeed, I would not advise any person in the condition that Mr. Echols was to come here. The chances of living are so remote that they are not worth the fatigue of the long journey. Consumptives, besides, should travel slowly and avoid taking cold while en route. This precaution Mr Echols did not take. He traveled through without stopping and must have contracted pneumonia on the day of his arrival. Mr. Garrett, his brother-in-law, was with him when he breathed his last and was much affected by his death.

RESUMING MY DIARY

it is necessary for me to go back several weeks. Mr. Titcomb and I had been in Mellonville a number of days killing time by fishing and listening to big yarns of aligators, bears and land sinks. One morning I proposed that we start on a hunting expedition afoot to Lake Joanna and the large lakes of the Ocklawaha. Accordingly one fine, bright morning we left Mellonville, gun in hand and a valise between us, bidding farewell to White and several others, who satirically offered to purchase all the skins of deer shot by us, at most extravagant prices, while we confidently agreed to supply every order. Striking out through the adjacent village of Sanford, we mounted a wagon and rode a distance of about eight miles to a place called Wilson's Store, not far from the Wekiva river, where we alighted and proceeded afoot in the direction of Mr. Markham's magnificent place lying on the river. This was our first tramp in the sands of Florida, and before we had marched half a mile we were compelled to get under a tree and rest. The heat of the sun was intolerable, although it was quite pleasant in the shade. Every step of the way, as we ploughed through the sand, the valise and guns seemed to become heavier, and it was fully two and a half hours before we had gone a distance of four miles. The country between Wilson's store and Mr. Markham's is pretty, but not remarkably so. It contains some excellent land, and is thickly settled, every homestead or piece of state land worth having being occupied. There are a few lakes, but not more than one or two at all striking. The contiguity of this section to Mellonville rather than the fertility of its land or the picturesqueness of its scenery is the cause of its settlement. Some of the lands occupied are really very poor and even scrubby, although, notably enough, one of the largest and most promising young orange groves passed is planted entirely on a "black jack" ridge, composed of soil not generally esteemed the best for anything. However, my observations tend to the conclusion that oranges and all other fruit of the citron class will grow on any kind of land in this country, excepting "hard pan" and positive scrub. About two miles from the Wekiva we stopped at a small cottage and obtained some execrably hot water. The owner of the premises, a Norwegian named Salzberg, is

A SINGULAR CHARACTER

He lives quite alone, and engages in the miscellaneous occupations of gunsmith, watchmaker, repairer of jewelry, photographer and fruit grower; and I have no doubt that he is capable of doing almost every other kind of work. He is quite an intelligent man, and will, in a few years, derive a large income from his orange and lemon trees. Here we rested several minutes and then proceeded toward the river. It was nearly two o'clock when we came in sight of a large frame house, beyond which, in the distance, we could see through the trees a large open space, over which hovered the bluish, foggy atmosphere, denoting the presence of water. As we approached the house, our first greeting was from a large and powerful dog, which barked at us in the most furious manner, and seemed rather anxious to bury its fangs in our legs. As we paused irresolutely before the gate, a couple of boys ran out, and driving away the animals, invited us in.

AT THE HOUSE,

we were welcomed by the proprietor, Mr. Montgomery, a native of Georgia, but for many years a resident of Florida. a minister of the Presbyterian church, and a gentleman of fine culture and of refinement, Mr. Montgomery received us with the characteristic hospitality of the gentleman and southern man. He was exceedingly feeble, having but shortly recovered from an attack of paralysis. I regret, in this connection, to say that about three weeks ago, after suffering great agony for months, he was tapped for dropsy. On the 7th inst., returning from Mellonville, I stopped at his house to enquire after his health. He was confined to his bed, and regarded himself as being at the point of death. Although exceedingly feeble and breathing with difficulty, his intellect was quite clear, and the language used by him in reference to (as he believed) his approaching dissolution, was as touching as it was a notable exhibition of Christian faith, hope and resignation. When I bade him adieu, expressing the hope that he would be spared awhile longer to his children the old gentleman shook his head slowly, and then clasping my hand in his attenuated fingers, prayed for me with such fervency that God would bless me and my family, and prosper us in our new home, that it was with bowed head and deep emotion I left him. I have not heard from him since then, and he may have left this world already, but I hope not. His exemplary Christian life, however, is a guarantee almost that the hereafter will be for him a happy and a blessed life. Mr. Montgomery is well known in Georgia where he has many friends. His son, Dr. Montgomery who resides with him, graduated at the Atlanta Medical college a few years ago. He is a gentleman of fine intelligence and education and commands very nearly all the medical practice for miles around him.

But to resume the diary: After a long rest, declining an invitation to remain until next morning we

A stone's throw from Mr. Montgomery's is a cottage on the Markham place, occupied by Capt. Dick Marks, formerly of LaGrange. The Capt. was absent, so without stopping we passed through cleared hammock, bordering the river. A large farm of laborers was at work in the field, on which, in every direction were the trenches containing the water-pipes laid by Hunicutt & Bellingrath of your city. A considerable number of orange trees had already been planted, and near the river we found a small but noble grove of full grown trees laden with the green fruit. This property is a superb one, composed almost entirely of a shell hammock, the soil is extraordinarily rich, while its position directly on the river gives it easy communication with the world by steamboat. It originally belonged to Mr. Hughley and was sold by him to Mr. Montgomery. Illness and financial misfortunes resulting from the war, rendered the latter gentleman unable to pay the balance of the purchase money, and it was sold to Mr. Markham, of Atlanta, who, I understand, acted in a most liberal spirit in the transaction. Mr. Markham is, I believe, a friend of long standing of Mr. Montgomery, and is known to stick to his friends. The place contains about two hundred acres, on which Mr. Markham proposes to plant twelve thousand orange trees. Ten years hence it will yield an income of $75,000 per annum. Twenty years hence it will yield an income of $250,000 per annum. I have been informed that Mr. Markham intended the place for his grandson, Willie Lowry, but if so, the recent death of this bright and promising child has frustrated the intention. More to-morrow.

GEORGIA'S GUIBORD.

The Case of Brinkley in the Supreme Court Yesterday.

Yesterday at noon, in the supreme court of the state, Chief Justice Warner and Justices Bleckley and Jackson upon the bench, the motion made by the counsel of Stephen B. Brinkley, the Coweta wife murderer, for a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Buchanan, presiding over the superior court of said county, to sign a bill or bills of exceptions, was taken up.

Judge R P Trippe, representing Mr. Hill of counsel, addressed the court. He said counsel for Brinkley stood before the court in what might seem rather a strange position, but they desired to deal fairly with the court. This application is for a mandamus to compel the judge of the superior court of Coweta county to sign and certify two bills of exceptions, or such order as will meet the exigencies of the case. A motion for a new trial was made under the provisions of the code, but it was under a great pressure for time, as the judge was about to leave for the purpose of holding the court in another circuit and in the midst of hurry in gathering up the new evidence relied upon. In the outset we will present the difficulty which we know to first present itself in the case. No notice was given to counsel for the state. The code requires 20 days notice, except in certain cases termed extraordinary. Now, if it be true that this failure to give the required notice is a fatal defect in the proceeding, then there was no case before the Judge below, and none here. If this fact is fatal it might as well be determined now, as that will be an end of the matter.

Judge Warner.—You admit that there was no notice of 20 days length given to opposing counsel, as required by the statute?

Judge Trippe.—Yes sir, and I will further state that we have no demurrer to make to the decision of the court that this fact is fatal, and proves there to have been no case before the court below and none here now.

Judge Warner requested that the section of the code referred to be read, which was done, by Capt. Latham, representing the state.

Judge Trippe said the position on his sid would be that, whereas the code says there shall be only one extraordinary motion for a new trial, if this motion fails for the want of notice, we shall hold that there is no jurisdiction in that court below, or here, and the whole proceeding is a nullity.

Judge Warner said the facts did not show a case at all. He thought all that this court could say would be to refuse the mandamus.

We are not clothed with plenary powers, and the law is as much our master as it is yours. On the facts, we cannot compel the judge to sign the bills. The law required twenty days notice. It was not given and the court was clearly right in not signing the bill, or bills.

Captain Latham read the reasons assigned by the judge below for signing the bill or bills, afore-mentioned.

The court said it would be compelled to pass judgment upon this application if it were persisted in, but counsel could withdraw it if they desired, and rest upon such other rights as they might have.

Counsel asked and were granted until 3 o'clock to determine upon their course. At a later hour we understood it to be a fact that the court refused the application.

During the afternoon counsel were seeking to get the governor to respite Brinkley again. The effort was persistent, but barren of results as yet.

Personal Paragraphs.

—The smiling face of Hon John Hockenhull was seen upon our streets Wednesday. A good conscience and overflowing humor makes the major feel as happy as the day is long.

—Major R. N. McClure, of Dawson county, is in the city. The major reports his county right side up with care. The only fault we have to find with Mac. is that he don't come to see us often enough. But when he does come he is a whole team.

—Mr. William Looper, of Dawson county, dropped in on us yesterday, looking as well pleased as a basket of chips. William takes the world easy, and in turn the world seems to agree with him. That "valise" story he told us was a good one.

The Daily Constitution

SELF-REVEALED.

"Dip deep thy pen into my heart,
O angel scribe, and write, that I
May know myself; I will not cry
Nor weep—dip deep; I will not start."

The angel dipped deep in her heart,
And drew his dripping pen and wrote;
And, though her knees together smote,
She did not cry, nor weep, nor start.

He wrote one word in many ways,
All quaint, but beautiful, until
His fair white roll was full, and still
Her modest eyes she did not raise.

"Is it all written?" "Even so,
Behold." She saw not, for her sight
Was dim with pain; and in despite
Her woman's tears began to flow.

Then through her tears she looked again,
And saw the word all written fair;
And smiled and sighed, and with her hair
Toyed, crying: "'Love!' but love is pain;

"Yet Thou, dear Christ, has shown me how
To die for love; let others wear
Life's roses in their waving hair,
I twine Thy thorns about my brow."

The angel bent his stately head,
And bade her bless him as he bowed;
"For though my name an state be proud,
I am no peer to thee," he said.

—Miss Genevieve Ward, nee or nearly "Countess of Guerrabella," who failed as a singer, but has succeeded so well in tragedy as to be called the "Queen of the Stage," is of royal blood—being daughter of Sam Ward, "King of the Lobby."

—In the reconstruction of the Hotel de Ville, Paris, a machine is used for cutting stone which does in one day the work of fifteen men. It is composed of two revolving cylinders furnished with marble hammers, by means of which the stone is separated with great rapidity and precision.

—A maddened father is rushing from the room wild for revenge. He cries: "My daughter, I go to avenge thee!" She clings to his knees and cries! do not kill them all! Leave me—leave me one!"

—We don't know of anything more embarrassing than to go into your barn at night and pick up an afghan and find out that is a wildcat. An Indiana man did this, and he endorses the opinion.—Rochester Democrat.

—"George," said a pretty young wife to her husband, as they were passing a jewelry store, "see that handsome gold watch marked $250. Is it a lever?" "Yes dear," said the wicked wretch, "and I guess we'll leave her."

—Since Brigham Young's release from confinement he acts like a changed man. It is only necessary for any of his wives to hint that the fire is low, and he will trot out to the wood-shed without a murmur.—Brooklyn Argus.

—Oakey Hall's determination to try the stage is quite likely stimulated by his penchant for the fair beings who inhabit it—notably Miss Ida Dyas—with whom current New York gossip has rather indissolubly connected the clever ex mayor of Gotham.

—A wrathful editor in Iowa called a cotemporary a "spike-necked, lop-eared horse-lipped chicken thief," but it appearing that he had a blind boil on his elbow at the time of that writing, the maligned man instantly forgave him, and no blood was shed.

—Mrs. Mary Ahert began business life on the edge of Laramie, on the plains, in Wyoming Territory. She had two cows and a calf. She peddled milk. She saved. She is worth $50,000, rides in her carriage and her daughter is the most accomplished young lady in her neighborhood.

—A woman in the case? Was there ever a case without a woman in it? "What mighty ills have not been done by woman?" Congress ought to pass a law abolishing woman. It might be inconvenient in its operation for a while, but the man would soon get used to nursing the children and running through the housework, and we'd have less shooting.

—Mr. Bergh thinks that the New York slaughterers are unnecessarily cruel in the operation of killing their hogs. Why don't they put them under the influence of laughing gas, and then, when a hog returns to consciousness, he will find that during his ecstatic insensibility he has been neatly cut up into sides, shoulders, and hams, salted and packed away, and is already booked for a tour on the continent.

—Darling, I am needing gold,
Silver coin among the rag;
Corner lots cannot be sold,
Mortgage deeds are worthless swag.
Taxes now are coming due,
And I cannot a stiver raise
On six brick houses in a block—
And ten per cent. at sixty days.

—Universal regret will be caused by the announcement that the ill health of Miss Clara Morris compels the suspension of her engagement at the Fifth Avenue theatre. The card of her physician announces that "it is absolutely impossible for her to appear on the stage for a considerable period of time." There will be genuine sympathy for Miss Morris in this calamity, which happens at the outset of what seemed to be a brilliant winter for her in the metropolis. Yet it is wise for her to retire from exacting toil and excitement in time for a complete restoration of health.

—Daniel Webster made a famous observation about the British flag, how the sun as it circled the earth was attended by perpetual drum beats saluting its first ray upon the national banner. Of Mr. Boucicault a similar figure might be invented. The sun, as it sets upon every quarter of the globe, regrets that it cannot stay out of bed long enough to see one of Mr. Boucicault's plays which follow him in his unceasing rounds. Not a night but what the curtain rises upon a Boucicaultian drama somewhere, and now we notice that his "Pauvrette; or Under the Snow," has been produced at the Boston Museum.

—A powerfully built young lady from Ghost's Gulch walked into a dry goods store at Canon City, Col., the other day, and blowing her nose and wiping it on her shoe heel, inquired of the bachelor clerk: "Do you keep hose, young fellar?" "Yes, ma'am, all kinds," was the reply; and pulling down a couple of boxes of hose he held a pair up to view. She looked straight at him, turned red, and overflowed with the remark: "You blasted fool, them's stockin's—I want a hoe." He referred her to the hardware store.

Summary of State News.

ROME.

—The usual buggy episode was celebrated in Rome on Sunday. Mr. R. S. Norton who happened to be in the buggy at the time escaped with a broken finger and a bad scare. Parties wanting a horse can buy his cheap.

—Last Sunday morning Rev. W. M. Crumley, pastor of the Methodist church, preached his final sermon and took his last farewell of his congregation. He left nearly all of his hearers in tears.

—Rome is struggling with a ten pound turnip.—Commercial.

SAVANNAH.

—A lady Washington tea party is the latest from Savannah. It came off yesterday.

—A four legged rooster sounds the clarion notes in the rear yard of Bresnan's European hotel.

—The junction between the Atlantic and Gulf and Savannah and Charleston railroad is nearly completed, and it is expected a train will be run over the line during the latter part of the meek.

—Old Tunis G. Campbell was taken out of jail on the United States writ of habeas corpus, and immediately recommitted. Only a mere formality, you see, on the part of the government, which makes Tunis now a United States prisoner.—News.

IRWINTON.

—A negro woman, the wife of a man who was sent last court by Judge Bartlett to the chain gang, for shooting another negro, got someoneto write to President Grant to release her husband from bondage. The letter was answered, and the president directed his secretary to inform her that he had no jurisdiction over the state of Georgia and referred her to Gov. Smith.

—The guards on the streets of Irwinton Friday night halted a very correct citizen who was riding through the streets about 9 o'clock, and upon his failing to halt he was fired upon. He escaped uninjured. Other citizens were halted, identified and sent home and locked themselves away in their little beds.

—The October adjourned term of Wilkinson superior court will meet on the second Monday, the 13th of December. There are 9 prisoners in the jail awaiting trial, and the civil dockets have many important cases which demand attention, and the prospect is that it will be a long and interesting session.

—Mr. Eli Harrell killed a wild goose in this county on last Friday. There were twenty in the flock, but he only succeeded in killing one.—Southernor.

GRIFFIN.

—At a late hour last night policeman Johnson was attacked by a couple of young bloods with foul intent, and but for a brave and manly resistance, might have been assassinated. The parties are both in the guard house, and will probably have a hearing this morning.

—The brothers of Frank Flynt, who was killed at Groggins' Station, have offered an additional reward of three hundred dollars for the apprehension of his murderer, making with the governor's five hundred $1.

MACON.

—A colored woman named Martha Vincent was arrested yesterday on the charge of drowning her infant child.

The woman confesses the crime. She said she had no one to take care of her and the child and she could get no home while she was encumbered with it; therefore she determined to get rid of it, which she did by throwing it into the branch where it was found.

The woman was confined in jail and will have a hearing before Justice Holt, at the courthouse this morning. The case is one of the worst that ever came under our observation. The woman is a rather dark mulatto, about twenty-two years of age.

About four o'clock last night, four prisoners succeeded in making their escape from the county jail and are still at large. They cut a hole through the floor of their cell, which admitted them to the basement, after which they had easy work to get outside the building. Once outside, they found the gate to the yard open, and made an easy exit to the street and liberty. But had the gate been closed they would have found no difficulty in climbing the plank fence surrounding the jail yard.

Those who escaped were: the notorious Gus Wayman, under sentence of ten years for assault with intent to murder; Bob Brown, charged with burglary and who has already served a term in the chaingang; Allan Parsons, charged with stealing cotton, and Sam Hogan, charged with stealing corn. They were all confined in the same cell and went off together.

On Sunday afternoon, while Mr. J. B. Morris and Mr. Sweeney were looking for cows, near Tuft's place, about a mile south of the city, they came across a spot of ground which seemed to have been disturbed recently, as if to bury something. They made an examination of the place and had scratched away only a few inches of loose earth, when they came in contact with a box which contained the remains of a white male infant, which appeared to be a newly born but fully grown fœtus.

Coroner Sessions was notified of the discovery and, summoning a jury, he proceeded at once to the place and held an inquest by torchlight. After an examination of the body and hearing the testimony of Messrs. Morris and Sweeney, which related only to the finding of the body, the jury returned a verdict that the "deceased came to its death at the hands of its mother."—Telegraph and Messenger.

HAMILTON

Hamilton had another jail delivery yesterday morning. The prisoners had broken the lock of the inner door, and when the jailor carried them their breakfast, four negroes rushed by him. One was captured by John Seats in Murphy's field, and the others got off. The two remaining occupants, Bill Seats and a negro girl, made no attempt to escape.—Visitor.

CUMMING.

—Tuesday last, in the afternoon, a little girl of Ed. Kellog's, colored, caught on fire and was burned so badly, that it died last night. Its mother started to the spring and before she got there heard the screams of the child. Hastening to the house she found it burned as above stated.—Clarion.

MARRIED IN GEORGIA.

—In Cedartown, on the 18th inst., by Rev. Mr. Davis, of Newnan, Judge W. M. Parks to Miss Betty, eldest daughter of Mr. W. M. Phillips.

—On Tuesday, at the residence of Mr S. R. Murphy, in Hamilton, by Rev. G. S. Johnston, Mr. W. O. Moss to Miss Emma J. Bedell.

—At the residence of the bride's father, on the 18th instant, by Rev. Samuel J. Bellah, Nr. R. P. Thompson and Miss Paulina L Jones, all of this county.

DIED IN GEORGIA.

—On last Friday, Mr. Joseph Epps, an old citizen of Floyd county.

—Mrs. Sarah Davidson, wife of Judge A. L. Davidson died in Conyers last Sunday night.

—On last Sunday Mr. William Glover, of Twiggs county.

Prompt Reinforcement.

When the physical energies are overtasked flag through weakness or disease, they need prompt reinforcement Renewed vigor is most speedily supplied through the medium of a tonic stimulant, and among medicinal resources of that class, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters assuredly deserve the preeminent place. Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease or overfatigue, cannot be better compensated for than by a resort to this prime strengthening cordial. The enfeebled invalid, the convalescent and the aged and infirm find that it is an unfailing source of vigor and comfort. Its combined tonic and alterative properties also constitute it an invaluable remedy for indigestion, weakness of the organs and urination, constipation, torpidity of the liver, and many other irregularities and disabilities, and render it an invaluable protection against malaria, as well as disorders the stomach and bowels.
nov26—deod1w&w1t

A sure preventive of the fatal results attending a cold may be found in the Home Stomach Bitters which stand, to-day through its merits alone, at the head of the list of tonics and a sure cure for fevers, indigestion and female sickness.

ENDOWMENT INSURANCE AT LIFE RATES.

Low Premiums. Definite Contrats

THE COTTON STATES LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Of Macon, Georgia,

Desirous of meeting the demand of the insuring public for low rates, and contracts that can be understood by all, offers the ENDOWMENT-LIFE-RATE POLICY, with conor dence that an examination of the plan is all that is necessary to commend it to the favor of all desiring insurance. This plan secures two objects:
1st. It provides for those dependent upon us in the event of death.
2d. It provides for our old age in case we attain a stipulated age.
The low rate of premium, and the fact that the insurance is payable with the ordinary period of life, makes it The Most desirable form of Policy now offered to the Public.

Reasons for Insuring on the ENDOWMENT-LIFE-RATE PLAN

1st. It gives the insurance at the lowest possible cost.
2d. It provides for your family in case of death.
3d. It provides for yourself in old age.
4th. There can be no loss. In case premiums should be discontinued, paid up insurance is given for the amount paid in premiums.
5. It is better than a savings bank. The first premium paid secures a fortune, and if payments are continued the accumulations and amount insured will be much more than could be earned by the most fortunate savings bank.
6th. It secures the amount at a stipulated age, within the ordinary period of life; and 7th. By this means it is no longer necessary to "die to win."

Reasons for Insuring in the COTTON STATES LIFE.

CATOOSA LIME WORKS

C. W. GRAY & CO.,

Graysville..........Georgia.

CONTRACTORS AND LIME DEALERS will find us prepared to supply the cheapest Lime in the market. The capacity of our Kiln enables us to always fill orders without delay. The high character already attained by our Lime, as evinced by the endorsement of builders and architects all over the country, fully proves its good quality. We guarantee a bushel of our Lime to yield as much when slaked, and to form as strong a bond in work as any in the market, and invite comparison and test with any other lime. Analysis of our Plastering Lime, by Prof. Wm. J. Land, of Atlanta, shows 90 per cent. of carbonate of lime, proving it to be one of the purest in the world is superior for cisterns, sewers, foundation and walls, and will give satisfaction to using it.
